right, are Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, president of the museum; Mrs. H. Gates Lloyd, member of the council's executive Committee; Mr. Rene Hannoncourt, director of the museum, and Mrs. Bliss Parkinson, president of the council. — Star Staff Photos.
